Message from the Principal

Dear Parents and Carers,

The Delaneys Creek State School tennis team is signed up to play again at this year’s Brisbane International Schools Challenge. Our team will be the following students: Shari-lee, Makayla, Max, Cameron and Tom.

In other exciting Tennis news, one of our students will be a ball kid at the 2016 Brisbane International.

Max (yr. 6) participated in the first trial session late in term 3, which saw him on the court for an hour and a half running constantly. During this trial he demonstrated his fitness, ball skills, good attitude and manners. The second trial session went for three and a half hours and Max continued to shine throughout this session and was selected as a Ball Kid in January’s Brisbane International. If he continues to work hard and show the great maturity he has demonstrated in the trials there is every chance he could get onto Pat Rafter Arena.

2016 School leadership

This week information was handed out to the current Yr. 5 students about how to apply to become a school leader in 2016. This will provide time for students to reflect on the process after attending the Yr. 5 leadership camp earlier this term. (See page 3 of Newsletter for more information on camp).

Following submitting their application potential leaders are invited to give a short speech to assembled Yr. 3-6 students, teachers and parents. If a student is applying for School Captain they are required to present a speech. Students applying for other positions are invited to present a speech however it is not mandatory for the position. These speeches will occur in week 9 and will help the student body and teachers decide who will be our new leaders in 2016. School Captains will be announced at the end of year school concert and awards night.

We Give a Great Start to Education at Delaneys Creek

Recently I have attended numerous award ceremonies at State High Schools. It is an affirming experience when past students of Delaneys Creek primary school are called upon to receive individual recognition awards for their academic achievement, high standard of behaviour and community service efforts. I have also been informed of achievements our past students are receiving in non-state school settings. Well done to all of our past students who still demonstrate they know how to ‘Strive for Success’.

Yours in Education, Anita Judge Principal

Debating Report

Mrs Bell our school Teacher Librarian worked with our Senior student debating team again this year. The following are her reflections on the progress the debating team made over the three terms.

The students worked well through the year to prepare their debates. They grew as individuals and as a team.

Bella’s expressive skills continued to develop as did her ability to develop logical arguments with persuasive elements to support her case.

Elle became more confident and developed the use of facial expression, eye contact and body language.

Aimee’s confidence grew as her emotive arguments and expressive voice engaged audience members.

Makayla learnt how to transform data into evidence to support her arguments and quickly formulate rebuttals.

Seren formulated her own logical reasoning from facts and data and presented rational, cohesive arguments.

Hannah displayed exceptional critical thinking skills, offering clear rebuttals.

Charlotte provided constructive peer feedback and contributed ideas to fellow team mates.

For Year 6 students
At this time of year uniforms can become worn out and if you are the last one from your family to attend our school it is not resonable for parents to purchase a new uniform. There is an availability of uniforms both new and second hand available for loan from chappy Lisa's room for the remaining last weeks of term for the year.

Blessings, Chappy Lisa

AUS Identities helped our Yr. 5 students to recognise and understand their individual approaches to life. During the Yr. 5 Leadership camp, students used AUS identities to understand how people prefer to complete activities and tasks in different ways and how to use their knowledge of different personalities to enhance their interpersonal communication.

Eagle
Soaring on wings outstretched high above the ground are the Eagles. Seemingly distant and detached at times, they have a tendency to focus on a broad picture of the world, of how things work and why, and the possibilities that exist for them to have an impact. Naturally curious about complex and generally excellent at applying critical thinking and analysis to problems, they are often viewed as the most academic of the types.

While occasionally they may be labelled by others as argumentative, they do not necessarily see themselves as such, simply that they are less willing than most to let the ideas or opinions of others go unchallenged. They tend to be outspoken and quite intolerant of anything they perceive as incompetence, both in themselves and in others and unlike some of the types, they will generally have little or no trouble letting you know where you stand with them.

Famous Eagles
Napoleon Bonaparte Albert Einstein
Bill Gates Isaac Newton
Walt Disney Rupert Murdoch
Steven Hawkins Charles Darwin

Dolphin
As in nature, Dolphins types are usually seen as warm, friendly and caring people that enjoy company, interaction and life within a group. Although they can also be quite independent, with some individuals occasionally drifting away from the company of others, they will ultimately be drawn to the presence of like-minded individuals in their search for peace and harmony. Natural dreamers and harmonisers they believe that people can get along together and that moral values and profit can coexist, even in the most commercially based situations. Often graduates of the Arts or Social Sciences, they will also be found in the more creative roles within an organisation, where they can be inspired to look for new ways to make products or systems within that business of greater value and more appealing.

Famous Dolphins
Nelson Mandella Mikhael Gorbachev
Martin Luther King

Kangaroo
If there was just one word to best describe the Kangaroo it would probably be adaptable. They take to new tasks and duties with an acceptance and enthusiasm that is rarely seen elsewhere. They can be playful, spontaneous, easy-going and practical and will often respond better to a crisis situation than to a set routine, using their natural abilities to deal with the situation at hand.

While they are quite accepting of the other types, their preference for acting on impulse and for trying to manoeuvre out of tasks that might seem particularly uninteresting will occasionally bring them into conflict.

Famous Kangaroos
Elvis Presley Steven Spielberg
Mohammad Ali Richard Branson
John F. Kennedy Mozart

Wombat
The Wombats are usually a great asset for any organisation that they are a part of. They tend to be dependable, loyal, and thorough in their approach to tasks and will want to abide by the rules as well as follow established procedures. They bring stability and dependability and a strong desire to be useful, all qualities that endear them to employers everywhere.

It is no surprise then that we find so many of them in positions of responsibility such as office managers, bookkeepers, supervisors, secretaries and personal assistants and running the vast majority of our social institutions like the civil service and our health, education and legal systems.

Added to their long list of excellent qualities is an ability to help us organise ourselves, both in the workplace and often in the home too. In fact it is one of the defining attributes of this type, their uncanny ability to bring order to places where previously there was little or none. Systems and checklists were designed with the Wombats in mind, which they are often keen to point out exist to assist us in our duties and to help keep us on task.
